Go pro (sometimes)

Insert the memory card into laptop

make folders on laptop with the destination name drag and drop the relevant photos into the desktop.

create another folder inside the destination folder with name "selected" Add potentially good frames to that folder

select all and open via photoshop or lightroom

edit

save.

Yes I do have a blog on blogspot
but I update that once in a month and sometimes once in 2 months.
I'm more active on Instagram. in terms of travel stories.

Travel stories → location based → philosophy → Star
theme base gaming

I do upload photos while ~~sharing~~ writing blog. These photos are usually high quality good frames that I clicked via DSLR mostly.

Sequence of events while searching
photos

go to desktop → search for the folder

or type name
in the searchbox
on the right-top
side of desktop
← if I
forget the
folder name
then it's a problem.
← go to
folder
↓
select photos.

Problems

Searching for meme based photos across folders.

eg star gazing.

have to manually fish out the relevant frames.

Digicam

No I don't have.

My father had.

I used it as a child. I was in class 8.

I don't use it.

Photo viewing on computer laptop → type Acer.

once in a week ~~once~~ especially for personal reasons.

otherwise daily for office use.

To show my slides to my colleagues in break time.

To show my slides to my family when I go home.

No specific interfaces.

I sometimes use Google photos.

open laptop → search for the folder visually
as I'm sure
I won't be remembering
the folder name.
